HILL ON BIMETALLISM.

What He Said on the Money Question Less Than Three Years Ago.

Estisat from spech of femaler David B. 11111. In United States Brazileon Ve Reyard of the Sharmer Furthers Lear.

"I do not believe in a single gold standard nor a single silver standard, but I do believe in the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country, and in their free coinage at our mints at a proper ratio and without discrimination of one intentia as against the other.

"The Sherman law is objectionable because it directs the pur-our mints at a proper ratio and without discrimination of one metul as against the other. The Sherman law is objectionable because it directs the purchase of silver instead of providing for the free coinage of silver. Purchase means price, price means commodity, and the treatment of silver as a commodity means its derogation from its intrinsic rank as a money metal. Gold has free coinage, and hence it has, no price in the United States. It has the right of free coinage inso price in the United States. It has the right of free coinage inso to full legal tender for the people who bring it, to any amount, to the mints. Silver coining nations have not purchased silver. They coin it for the people just as gold coining nations coin gold. It is the absence of the free coinage of silver, the existence of a limited and restricted coinage that compels government purchases of silver, and such purchases absolutely prevent parity. For metallic coinage is essential to the parity of the two metals, and nothing else will successfully and satisfactorily maintain such parity.

metallic coinage is essential to the party of the two means and nothing cles will successfully and satisfactorily maintain such parity.

"The British new-fangled theory of gold monometallism is an ignormat, insular, weak-minded theory, like their theory of taxas time without representation before 1776, * • * Return to the bimetallism of 1873. It is a permanent remedy for our financial difficulties. Free silver coinage has not failed. The country has not tried free coinage insee it was unwittingly absendoned in 1873, but it has tried a limited and restricted coinage. Silver purchases, the accumulation of silver bullion and a depreciated currency, all of which have been forced upon the cointry by monometallists through misertable compromises obtained from silver money. Why not try the only remedy that has not yet been applied? The insufficiency of our present volume of currency seems to be everywhere conceded, and yet there is an unaccountable relactance to establish a permanent financial system, under which the deficiency can be easily supplied.

"I have heard intelligent men frequently say: "Let us have a dollar's worth of silver in a silver dollar, and everybody would be satisfied. This is a very narrow and superficial view of a content of the country of the sation depends little upon a mere matter of ratio.

"It have been forced in a should not be cultured, but dimin-of ratio.

"If the ratio is changed, it should not be enlarged, but diminished, and put at 153, so as to correspond with that of the Latin ished, and put at 153, 80 as of Union.

"It is said that the president's message contemplates the stablishment of a gold standard as the policy of this country. If he really favors the single gold standard, I absolutely decline to follow him in his new departure. I shall refuse to follow any administration which seeks to place the Democratic party in a false position, which seeks to lead it away from its traditions, away from the contemporary from the path of safety, away from democratic principles and platforms and into the camp of the enemy. The president must rely upon republican votes to carry out any such saticidal policy." ministration which seeks to place the Democratic party in a false position, which seeks to lead it away from its traditions, away from the currency of our fathers, away from the path of safety, away from democratic principles and platforms and into the camp of the enemy. The president must rely upon republican votes to carry out any such suicidal policy."
